

What are cookies?

Cookies are small text files that are transferred by a website to your browser directory. They help the website identify your browser/device. They perform different tasks on a website, and certain aspects of the website will not function correctly without them.

To find out more about cookies please visit:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/HTTP_cookie

<http://www.allaboutcookies.org>

Google Analytics

Google Analytics gathers information about users, how they found and navigated to the website as well as facts about which browsers they have used. The data gathered by this cookie is anonymous and is used to enhance the usability of this website. Google Analytics is known as third party cookies, no information gathered is personal or specific to an individual user.

For further information please see:

<http://www.google.com/intl/None/policies/privacy/faq>

Cookies and how Creative Remedy uses them.

The cookies used on the Creative Remedy website are: Google Analytics

Implied consent policy

We operate an implied consent policy. This means by actively using the Creative Remedy website, we assume that you accept our implied consent policy terms which means if your browser is set to accept cookies that you are happy with their usage through third party cookies such as Google Analytics.

If you are not happy you should not use the site or delete these cookies at the end of your visit.